

Network VEKA Offers Insurance-Backed Guarantee For uPVC Conservatories

by Rachael Connelly on July 12th 2010 and filled under Business

The world's biggest privately owned window systems company, Network VEKA, is now allowing homeowners to find a company that can make a conservatory for them. Adding a conservatory is typically a home improvement project and it can be a costly venture. But the problem is, there are far too many companies that do shoddy work and leave the homeowner unsatisfied. To solve this problem, the uPVC Conservatories service of Network VEKA comes with an insurance policy. Hundreds of homeowners are relying on this insurance backed guarantee from Network VEKA to find a reliable and experienced company that can make them a flawless conservatory for their home.

The company is able to offer the guarantee and the insurance policy because of the quality of the service providers in their network. Network VEKA selects its members carefully and invests in them, thus ensuring the quality of the uPVC conservatories they install. All members of the network are fully trained and can install any of the products advertised to the highest quality standards. The conservatories, uPVC doors, and uPVC windows offered by Network VEKA will all feature top quality materials and installation. As a result, homeowners across the UK can feel confident when they are planning to install a conservatory, knowing that the investment they are making is risk free.

uPVC conservatories are a great idea that can enhance the value of a property. With the slump in the housing market in the UK and in the other parts of the world as well, many people are now opting not to sell their homes. Adding a conservatory will definitely enhance the value of the home, and when the owner decides to sell the property, the sale price is sure to be higher.

Many homeowners are now deciding to extend their properties and are trying to make them more livable. Traditionally, extensions were made of brick, but now, with double glazing, uPVC conservatories have become more popular because heat can be better retained. Because of this, modern-day conservatories can be used throughout the year. Network VEKA is at the forefront of this movement because the company allows homeowners to find the best companies from their list of members.

Conservatories come in various styles, such as Edwardian, Victorian, P-Shape or T-Shape, Bespoke, Lantern Top, and more. The kind of conservatory you add will depend on the style of your home. Of course, there is the issue of your family's needs as well. Network members will work with homeowners to plan uPVC conservatories and design them so that they will be both attractive and functional.

About Network VEKA: Network VEKA is the world's biggest privately-owned window systems company. The company employs more than 3000 people and has a turnover of more than 700 million Euros. The window systems of VEKA were the first in the UK to be awarded an 'A' Rating under the new energy ratings system. Network VEKA has now also ventured into installing conservatories.

To learn more about the uPVC Conservatories from VEKA, please visit the given link.

Contact:

Rachael Kaye Connelly 0800 80 00 80

